Discipline:

GUIDELINES: Our approach to discipline focuses on self control. Rules are developed and limits are set for four main reasons: possible harm to self; possible harm to others; damage to property; and infringement on the rights of others. We feel our goal is best accomplished by utilizing the following guidelines: staff are to act as limit setters to clarify and support choice making; positive language and manners will be used to communicate limits and provide consistent explanations; an environment structured to help students remember limits will be provided; students are recognized with praise for respecting limits; and students are expected to follow the established rules of conduct for the building.

PROCEDURES: The following procedures for handling discipline problems have been established for the program. These procedures are to ensure the safety and welfare of all participating children and staff. Certain behavior may be considered so serious that exclusion from the program is necessary. The student may be excluded from the program for up to 5 days. Some examples of such behaviors are fighting, student or teacher abuse, disruption of program procedures, destruction of property, stealing, refusal to follow directions. Further or repeated violations could result in exclusion from the program for the remainder of the school year.
